Alfred E. Smith and Samuel Seabury Resign in Protest Against Alleged Dilatory Tactics of Commission Members.

"BETRAY HOPES"

Mrs. George Wyeth Also Quits, Charging Commission Had "Betrayed Hope of the People" on Tax Problem.

New York. August 3 (P).-Amid the deepest confusion, legislative efforts to modernize and readjust New York city's ancient charter headed toward the rocks today under the impetus of the resignation from Governor Alfred E. Smith and Samcel Scabury.

Resigning as protest against the bers seeking to maintain the governmental and political status quo in was ready to take his fight to the people over the radio.

Mrs. George Wyeth, secretary of the charter commission, was the latest to follow the lead set by Smith and Seabury. She tendered her resignation to Secretary of State Ed-

HONEST WORK

DEAR CHILDREN

Whose you do a bit of work do it honestly. The respect you have for your work demands that. Give it the best you have. When you do that you got back something rich and fine from the work of your hands. Something that feeds your sont and gives your mind quality and strengthens and makes cunning your hands

When you slight a job, when you skimp it because you are a bit weary of it, or you are in a hurry to get to your play, you give the worst that is in you, and that poor quality of spirit colors your soul, makes it cheep and ugiy, weakens your thinking and makes your touch clumsy.

Hands are tied to the mind that is behind them. Your hands do not work of themselves. They don't move until you think that movement. The way you think it, the power that goes into the thinking, is what drives those hands. That means that honest, willing, devoted work puts a certain rish quality into your thinking which in turn comes back to your work through your hands. Hands are intelligent or dumb, according as to how they are fed. And please remember that they are fed intelligence directly from your mind and that it comes in the form of thought.

When you think; "I'll make this corner as true as the T square will let it be. I'll make the joint as true and as tight as glue and vice will make it, no matter if it isn't going to show on the outside. It will show in strength and quality. It will show me as I lived in my hands this day."-if you think something like that you will soon be doing great work. And it will be known as yours without your signature. The work of your hands wrote your name in clear letters.

If you are sent on an errand, if it is your job to deliver a measage and bring back an answer, leave nothing undone to get what you started out to get. If you must wait, wait, if you can't see the person you hoped to see ask for someone else. Keep going until you can't go any further but get somewhere before you stop. Don't turn back at the first barrier and report, "I couldn't find it. He wasn't there. I couldn't get in. He didn't have any green ones. He didn't know what I meant." Those are the answers of a poor stick indeed. They show poor work.

If you are filing letters file them. Don't get tired and say, "I'll just stick these in here. I'll fix them later." You won't fix them. You will forget them. That is the thought that it making you stick them in the wrong box. Poor work. Dishonest work. You will suffer for it by and by. Cheating does show.

Whether people watch you or not, do your best. Do your best for your own sake. Don't you see you write your name on all you do? Haven't you heard somebody say, "That's Harry's work. Wouldn't you know he did it just look at it?" Haven't you heard somebody say, "I'd know whose work that was if I came across it in the desert"? That's what I mean. Do your work, whatever it is, so well, that it shadows your spirit at its best and loveliest. Not alone because the world needs such work, but because, you need

Expand Air Program

Rome, Aug. 3 (P).—Air-minded Italy rejoiced today at Premier Mussolini's decision to keep pace with countries in an aircraft construction program. The decision was made known through an appropriation decree published by the official gazette alloting 1.200.000.000 lire (about $100.000. 000) for "extraordinary expenses" connected with Italy's aerial de-

SEVERE STORM IN EASTERN MICHIGAN.

Detroit, August 3 (AP).—Eastern Michigan, fixing its casualty list at eight dead and scores injured. plunged today into the task of clearing debris-strewn roads and repairing storm damage unofficially estimated at $1,000,000. Homes and stores in a dozen communities between Detroit and Flint must be reconstructed.

The storm struck late yesterday with a fury which blackened the sky for an hour, pelted the countryside with hall, disrupted wire and highway communication and beached the excursion steamer Tashmoo with its 250 passengers in the St. Clair river.

Romance of Wedding Ring Dates to Egyptian Times

The Egyptians of old said that a delicute nerve runs from the fourth finger of the left hand to the heart, writes a correspondent in the Weekly Irish Times. So this finger is adorned with the wedding ring, the left hand being chosen to show that the woman is to be "subject to the man."

Ring posies or mottoes were inscribed inside the rings given by men to women in the Sixteenth century. The "postes" were composed of rhyming lines, such as:

"In thee, my choice, I do reloice," 'My heart and I until we die." "When this you see then think of me." "Not two, but one, till life is done."

The old Mispah ring-a gold ring bearing the word "Mispah"-was exchanged between lovers when they were to be parted for any length of time, the word Mispah being interpreted as "The Lord watch between thee and me when we are absent one from the other."

In ancient Rome special star-rings, dedicated to the Goddess of Health. were worn as protection against diseases and plagues. Part of the design of the ring was a coiled snake, the viper having been regarded as a symbol of healing. Perhaps, this was the origin of the so-called "Hallowed Rings" of the Middle ages-rings made from pails taken out of old coffins. which were supposed to cure cramps. in the muscles.-Montreal Herald.

Johnny Applement

Johnny Appleseed, who traveled throughout the country in the early days planting apple orchards for the coming settlers, is regarded as the mest eccentric figure in American history. He went barefooted not only in summer hut often in winter, wore as a coat a coffee sack with boles cut in it for his neck and arms, was frequent-If seen wearing a you for a bat, thought it similal to kill even a rat or a poisonous snake, was never without his Bible, endured pain as the most resolute stoic, and was leved by the settlers and feared by the Indians, the letter of whom would not have blue because they thought his mind was pathetically warped. Still despite his queerness, by his extensive planting of nurseries be performed a service to burnship not less benedicial than have been performed by many statesmen

Sime of the stout eraft that tow the great nets-a tesm keeps them open. equipment, which Lightens the labors many, the only power is that of human muscles. Once every boar the het is pulled aboard, a long and toilsome job and one requiring skill, since there is the possibility of losing a portion, if not all, of the catch, As the net rises, it is clamped shot carefully and as much rubbish as possible scraped off. Finally, when it has risen its length above the deck, with cascades of salt water pouring over the fishermen, a string is pulled and the catch pours out. Not until then do the fishermen know what luck they

As quickly as possible, the net goes back into the ocean and the boat steams ahead another hour. The crew does not loaf, however. The catch has to be sorted. Varied is the take from the sea. There are evil-looking skates and blowdsh, along with other "trash." There are green turtles, which eventually will make soup along Broad-In fact, there are all sorts of marine life. Much of it is worthless and goes back overboard along with the rubbish scraped up by the net. The marketable fish are then cleaned and placed on ice. When that is done, it is time to hanl in the net again And so it goes hour after hour.

Beam trawlers are accustomed to finding many strange things in their nets. In the days of prohibition, bottles were often part of the catch. Sometimes trinkets of various kinds are salvaged from the sea. But the crew of a trawler operating off the Rockaways recently had a real surprise. The net came in slowly and the captain reckoned that they had something more than a ton of fish. The catch wasn't fish, however. It was an airplane motor with a propellor attached, the whole weighing 3,000 pounds. The motor had been lost from a plane, which had crashed while being tested for the government.

While beam trawling is extremely hard work at all times of the year, in winter it is even more than that. Gales may blow, ice may cover lines. decks and even men, but fishing still goes on, Asked Capt, Charles Hanff, who commanded a beam trawler—the captain works right along with the crew-for many years, enough years in fact to send a son through college, why men chose such an arduous occupation. He replied that he didn't know-unless it was because they

New York is noted for its chiselers. They seem to be everywhere. Nothing escapes their attention. But to my mind, the meanest of them all were those who crashed the lines where 8-cent milk was being sold to those too poor to pay the regular retail price. Because of the chiselers, several thousand of the poor were unable to obtain milk badly needed for children. And a check also showed sev-134 eral thousand chiselers on the welcial kind of punishment devised for such aileged human beings. For instance, they might be made to take food.

> For no reason at all, there comes into my mind at the moment the tale of the gentleman who attended one of those pent-house parties. Wandering out onto the terrace, he glanced down at adjacent apartments and what he saw interested him so that he borrowed a pair of field glasses from his host. Handing the leather case to a friend, he started a slow circuit of the terrace, the friend following with the case dangling from his neck. "What are you doing, anyway?" demanded another member of the party. "Oh," replied the case carrier, "I'm acting as caddy for a peeping Tom."

wondered what I could do to make them drink enough milk. Because children need milk-a quart z day. Well, I told them we'd all pienic in the kitchen, every day, when they got home from school.

We all sit around the table now, and drink milk, and take just a tiny mack of something. They've been looking better ever since we've been doing it. And as a matter of fact, I've been looking better too. Try it-drink more milk: it's good for you!

Potash

The name potash was derived from the early method of producing the commodity. Wood ashes were placed Butter 7,789, firmer. Creamery; in a pot and water poured over them from time to time. Then the mineral was extracted from the liquid. This method has even survived the mining of the large deposits of potash which were discovered in Germany in the middle of the last century, and which have since been the world's most important source. Before the World war the Stassfurt and Alsace deposits gave the kniser virtual control of much of the world's agriculture.

New Hampshire's Lakes

In the 9302 square miles with which the United States geological survey credits New Hampshire there are more than 800 lakes and ponds, from a few acres in extent to Winnipesaukee, about 30 miles long. There are 14 mountain peaks that rise more than 5.000 feet above the level of the sea. an almost uncounted number ranging from 1,000 to 4,000 feet in height. The majority of the mountains are thickly wooded.

Task Difficult.

Lieutenant (loionel Corbin declared) "We have no idea how many of the broties we will be able to find. They were buried at widely dispersed policy near about ten villages in the Amur region. After fields are plowed under, and small crosses are lost or removed, the job of locating a burial place years. afterwards is no mean task.

"That is why the War department will not ask the familles of the slain soldiers what disposal they wish made of the remains until we have located the bodies. We shall avoid unnecessary grief."

Search in Summer,

The bodies have to be located and exhumed during the summer, despite the swampiness of the land due to overflowing rivers. Winter lasts seven months out of the year there, and the land becomes frozen.

The actual work will be done by residents of the territory, under agreement with the Soviet authorities.

The bodies will all be brought through the U.S.S.R. to Leningrad and will be put on a ship there for Hamburg. At Hamburg, the coffins will be sent either to France or the United States, in accordance with the wishes of the families of the dead.

The American troops in the Archangel sector were from the Three Hundred and Tenth Engineers and the Three Hundred and Thirty-ninth infantry, mostly from Michigan.

They left 222 of their comrades dead from various causes. About half of the remains were returned to the United States in September, 1918. During the summer of 1926, an additional 86 bodles were returned to the United States. Of the party of three Americans, only Russell H. Corbin has ever been to that region. He was there in 1929. The third member of the group is Daniel Gibbs, Both Dutcher and Gibbs are ex-service men who have been employed with the American Graves registration service in Paris.

Alpine, Texas.-- A test of the Einstein theory; study of star atmosphere and investigation of the properties of matter exposed to high temperatures will be the particular work assigned to the Mt. Locke observatory shortly to be opened in the Davis mountains of west, Texas. Its 80-inch telescope will be second in size to the 100-inch glass of the Mt. Wilson observatory. The difference in size does not denote an inferior instrument. It will be fully as powerful, for its special purpose of studying faint nebulae and discovering distant universes. Operation of the observatory for 30 years will be under joint direction of the University of Texas, which is supplying the plant, and the University of Chicago, which will staff and operate it. Dr. Otto Struve of the Yerkes observatory will direct its work. The observatory is being erected with proceeds of a residuary legacy left to the University of Texas by the late W. J. McDonald, Paris (Texas) Its site is on a 6,791-foot elevation, chosen after months of atmospheric and temperature tests.

Hard-Boiled Cavalrymen "Kidnaped" Little Lamb

Broadus, Mont.-Rough, tough, hardboiled members of the machine gun unit of the Fourth United States cavalry participated in a "kidnaping" near here and are suffering retribution. While the doughboys were approaching Broadus a tiny lamb trailed the cavalcade for three miles. Unable to force the kid to return to its mother. the soldiers placed it in a chuck-wagon and made the stranger a company pet. Now the machine gun unit has a special "lamb-nursing detail"—aided and abetted by a pipple and bottle of special construction.

After all, who has the playing advantage in golf? The professional, who spends most of his time teaching, or the amateur, who spends most of his time teaching, or the amateur, who spends most of his time playing?

Star tennis players spend from six to eight months of the year playing tennis around the world, with all their expenses paid.

Tennis skill must be a big part of their living but they remain amateurs. Many tennis amateurs in this respect fare much better than many bated, Many 4th, 1934.
